

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system is provided for balancing state of charge among plural series connected electrical energy storage units that includes a power converter that selectively couples to an individual storage unit of the a string of electrical energy storage units and transfers
5 energy by bidirectionally between the individual storage unit and the string of storage units.